ually-burning lamps, said to have been in use by the ancients. Workmen were recently excava-ting for a foundation for a new building, in a debris evidently the remains of Gallo-Roman erecground sort of a cave, which time had rendered almost of metalic hardness. An opening was, however, effected, when one of the workmen instantly exclaimed that there was a light at the botstantly exclaimed that there was a light at the bottom of the cavern. The parties present entered, when they found a bronze sepulchral lamp of remarkable workmanship suspended from the roof by chains of the same metal. It was entirely filled with a combustible substance, which did not appear to have diminished, although the probability is the combustion had been going on for ages. The discovery will, we trust, throw some light on a question which has caused so many disputes among learned antiquaries, although it is stated among learned antiquaries, although it is stated that one was discovered at Viterbo in 1840, from which, however, no fresh information was afforded on the subject.—Mining Journal.

TEMPERANCE-Concluded.

Without attempting to explain the cause of this phenomenon, we opine, that it does not lie in the phenomenon, we opine, that it does not lie in the consciousness of a safe practice. In another place Anti Diotrephes significantly asks "Are tectotallers aware that when they revile a moderate user of wine, they attack a character which the Bible

The import of this question seems to imply, that the Bible praises men, because they drink wine.— If this is the meaning, we answer, it is wrong to revile any man, but that the Bible makes it incumtent on a good christian, to drink wine, we think it would be hard for even Anti Diotrephes to prove without the aid of such a glossary as wine drinkers alone could get up.

There are many marks given in the Bible by which a man is to judge of his christian character but among them all we have failed to find this hat a man must use wine or some other intoxicating drink in order that his works be acceptable in the sight of his Maker.

But perhaps it will be said that this is a perversion, and that all that was intended is, that a man may be a moderate user of wine, and still be a good christian, if this be the meaning, then it must follow, that it is no necessary part of a good man's character that he does not use wine, for in so doing (by the admission of our opponent,) there is no

On this point the teetotaler is not a whit behind his wine drinking brother, yet the writer quoted above, says, "If men will not come up to the ted above, "If men will not come up to t and carnal one, let them by all means employ it, but let them stop short of exacting it of those who accomplish the end better, by obeying a far higher and more efficient one." This quotation would indeed enduce a smile, if the subject was not of too serious a nature to be trifled with. Men not satisfied with the hope that they are christians, but periling themselves on the higher ground which they occupy, and the higher rule, by which they are governed, because they drink wine moderately, while their brethren under "a carnal rule" do not drink!

What is the ground on which a large part of professing christians, who are teetotalers, abstain from the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage? Not for their own sakes, but that they may set before the world an example, that will be safe for fore the world an example, that will be safe for every man to follow. What has made more disgraceful inroads upon the christian church, than intemperance; what single vice stands more in the way of men's becoming christians in this commu-nity, than intemperance? By what paths are men led into the broad road of Intemperance, but by the paths of moderate drinking? Wine drinker professors, admit that they would violate no command by abstaining. They in common with other christians profess to have put on Christ, to be ready to make any sacrifice, that may be required in order to do good to the bodies and souls of their fellow men. They see the ravages which intemperance is working, yet they are unwilling to give up their wine, though it may be willing to give up their wine, though it may be that their neighbor is treading upon the very verge N MONDAY, next, at his Auction Room, at that their neighbor is treading upon the very verge 10 c clock, will be sold DRY GOODS, Clothof ruin, through the force of their example. It is said of the great teacher, " that for our sakes he became poor, that we through him might be made rich." Now I put the question to every winedrinking disciple, whether it would be any violation of this heaven born principle, for him to abstain, from west he considers an innocent luxury, that he may exert a more healthful influence over a tempted neighbor, or a weak brother? I ask it such a sacrifice, if it be a sacrifice, will be a thorn in his dying pillow, a wrinkle in the white robe, which he hopes to wear in Henven? A TEETOTALER.

Estempore Speaking.

It is no small thing to be called on suddenly to address a public meeting, of any sort, and to find all your wits gone a-wool-gathering, when you most require their services. -"Such being the case," and " standing admitted," as it will be, by numerous readers, we commend the following speech of a compulsory order at the opening of a free hospi-"Gentlemen - Ahem !-I-I rise to say-that is, I wish to propose a toast-wish to propose a toast. Gentlemen, I think that you'll all say-shem-I think, at least, that this toast is, as you'll say, the toast of the evening-toast of the evening. Gentlemen, I belong to a good many of these thingsand I say, gentlemen, that this hospital requires no patronage-at least, you don't want any recommendation. You've only got to be ill-got to be ill. How to Kill an Alligator.

The Boston Post gives an account of the way an officer in the British army of India killed an laligator, and thinks it may have aggested the voltaic battery in the capture of a whale. The alligator had established himself close to a ford, to the disgust and terror of the neighboring population. The he went trolling for the creature, as a fisher-man would for pike. Having bolted it gree-dily, the brute sunk to the bottom to enjoy its digestion at his leisure. His scientific enemy then applied a voltain battery to copper wire running through his fishing line, and there was a violent turnultuous boiling from this date:—and all persons indebted to the
